

In Allah's system, justice and fairness hold a fundamental position rather than absolute equality. Ranking is based on intellectual capability and practical competence. The flawed concept of human equality has pushed the societal system towards imbalance, necessitating deep reflection. Governance and high administrative capabilities are two distinct qualities that rarely converge in a single individual. In the history of Islam, only the noble personality of Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) stands as a complete and exemplary model, excelling as both a great ruler and an exceptional administrator. He introduced a structured political, economic, and administrative system to the world.

It is our national and moral duty to oppose and counteract anyone who conspires against our country or takes hostile actions. However, the real questions are: who are these elements, how did they reach this point, and who facilitated them? Without addressing these fundamental questions, achieving peace is impossible.

History testifies that crises and disasters do not occur randomly; rather, they result from careful planning and internal assistance. The ongoing crisis in Pakistan is, in fact, a battle for the survival of 250 million citizens and the country itself. At this critical juncture, leadership must rise above personal ego and make decisions in the interest of national security. International forces first implement their economic policies and infiltrate key state institutions (government, central bank, judiciary, civil, and military bureaucracy) through their representatives to exploit weaknesses. Currently, the primary objective of hostile forces is to create a rift between the military and the public through false and misleading narratives, pushing the country toward internal strife and civil war.

A nation's defensive strength relies not solely on weapons but on the unity of its people. We must not allow our armed forces to be isolated, nor should we let national cohesion be disrupted, as the first victim of any conflict is the one holding the weapon. This is a well-known tactic of international conspiracies, repeatedly employed throughout history. Therefore, every citizen bears the responsibility of fostering unity and stability rather than spreading hatred and division.

Regarding the accusation of treason, it is an extremely serious charge that should not be directed at any individual without concrete evidence. No one should be labeled a traitor unless a transparent judicial investigation conclusively proves the offense. Nowadays, this term is irresponsibly used, which can be detrimental to national unity. From a legal standpoint, an independent citizen cannot be guilty of treason, as they do not operate under any specific institution. The charge of treason applies only to individuals affiliated with state institutions who have pledged an oath of duty and subsequently violated it.

The fundamental purpose of state organization is to serve as a practical training ground for individuals who can work according to predefined principles. The military is one of the most crucial state institutions, primarily trained for defense-related responsibilities to ensure national security and safeguard geographical borders. As long as sound policies and decisions are provided by civil leadership, a professional military efficiently fulfills its duties. However, weaknesses in state decision-making can adversely affect military performance, ultimately harming national interests. The core function of military leadership is to devise strategic warfare plans and their execution. A leadership that cannot secure victory on paper can never triumph on the battlefield.

Every Muslim firmly believes that the Quran is a complete code of life. It explicitly states that the unjust killing of a single human being is equivalent to the murder of all humanity. Similarly, according to the interpretation of Surah Al-Ankabut, verse 48, if one lacks knowledge in any matter, they must seek guidance from scholars. If no scholar is available, they should turn to the Quran and the Sunnah of the Prophet (PBUH).

Sincerely,
Arshad Naeem Chaudhry
Chairman, Pakistan Ideological Alliance
Kuwait, March 26, 2025